Two Thousand and None

Dir. Arto Paragamian, 2000, 94 mins

This tragic comedy centers on Armenian American paleontologist Benjamin Kasparian (John Turturro) who learns that he doesn't have long to live. As death nears he finds himself examining his family's past, and starts seeing images of his childhood in Armenia everywhere. The contrast between Kasparian's bravery and the worry of people close to him is a source of warm and humane comedy. Hilarious yet quiet, the film uses old home movies to portray shifting memories, as Kasparian develops his crucial last mission in life. Previously very difficult to find, this film has just become available to stream.
